The trade, indeed, seems to be rapidly drifting to such a point that it will be an exception to find a single bale of really through one of the most varied and well selected sound goods. The immediate consequence programmes that has been presented to the of this state of affairs, is that the constant sale by public auction of goods in a mildewed energy and talents displayed both by the state is injuring the trade in sound goods. It is, of course, not to be expected that the Chinese will pay full rates for the goods on the market when they can purchase those Twhich have become spotted by mildew at , about half the rate. "THE CHRONICLE AND DIRECTORY" [facts to the conclusion that dishonesty, and not honesty, is the best policy.

Is it not possible for the manufacturers to meet the matter half way? It would probably be too much to ask them to give up their cherished sizing altogether—but would it not at least be to their interests to keep the process within such bounds that they will at all ovents not sell a much smaller quantity of their goods than could be disposed of otherwise? It would surely be more to their interest to make smaller profits upon larger quantities and in a regular manner, than, as at present, to realize large amounts upon manufactures every parcel of which must be a homily to the Chinese not to use foreign. goods if they can possibly do with native cottons, which, if more expensive, are at all events, reliable. That this effect is produced cannot be overlooked, and it will be curious to see how long the home manufacturers will be content to go on killing the goose which lays the golden eggs.

THE DIAMOND FIELDS. The Diamond News says :- " Diam ands, like angels' visits, are becoming ' few and far between, and the London diamend merchant must make up his mind to give more money for diamonds than he is now doing. There will be a much larger market for diamonds than there has ever been before, and America slone will absorb a large number, for the people of that country are becoming more wealthy and luxurious year by year, and then we find that the diamond is found to be essential for more trade operations than it used to be. We are more doubtful as to the supply than we are of the demand for dismonds. There is no sign of any new Kopje like Colesberg Kopje. Prospectors prospect in vain. All the easy part of the digging out of Colesberg Kopje is over. Few claim holders are making profits upon their expenditure. THE RECENT RIOTS AT FRANKFORT.

The recent riots at Frankfort are sad enough when we think of the loss of life and destruction of property occasioned by them; but they have also their absurd side. The price of a glass of beer is raised from four to four and a ball kreuzers. This may be rather disagreeable; but one, would not think it a wrong likely to rouse a population to fury. MURDERING THE WRONG MAN A singular tragedy occurred in a village other day some few miles from Hyderabad. evening, went over to the Police station and asked permission of the jemadar to allow him his journey at that late hour. His request was it, was discovered that the banian had a bag of among themselves to inurder the man, and take possession of his money. The banian then pretending sleep, overheard the conversation, and when all the men were safe in the arms of Morpheus, quietly stole from his bed, threw the cloth be had on his person over the jemadar, got out of the thannah, and perched bimself upon a tree with the bag of money. A few minutes after, he found to his horror the peons assemble under the identical tree and dig a grave, which being done, they went back, and mistaking the jemudar for the banian, deliberately murdered the former, and after hacking the body to pieces, they threw the hits into the grave. While this was being done, the banian found that some other poons, evidently going their rounds, were approaching the spot, whereupon he called out with a loud cry for assistance. Scarcely had they reached the place than the banian jumped down smidst them, and in the greatest state of excitement related the whole matter. The peops, who were taken by surprise, confessed to the crime they were charged with and from which there was no chance of escape. Nicholson, Uaptain Edghill, and Captain Price, being posted on the bridge at the south end of the water, nearly half a mile distant, to judge of the general effect of the signals in order to report to the Mansion House Committee. The cards of invitation to the experiments stated that they would take place "weather permitting." Now this is, on the whole, rather un ambiguous phrase, for Saturday night though without rain, was about as thick, raw, and inclement, as bus ever marked the advent of an English spring. Yet there were thousands present to witness an exhibition which was looked on merely as one of fireworks, as indeed for the greater part it was. Yet the exhibition was appropriate, for we doubt if ever so large a hody of persons better deserved signals of dis tress than the unhappy body of spectators who stood on the wet grass in a keen wind for two solid hours on Saturday night on the banks of the Serpontine.

The experiments which took place on Saturday night may be divided into three main subjects-first, improvements in ordinary ships's lanterns or lights; second, melius of signalling with flashing lights from the shore; and, third, distress and pilot signals. As there were 21 exhibitors, with 58 inventions, it is quite impossible to mention all; indeed, we are saved this trouble, for some of them, as to the means to the end they proposed to accomplish, are utterly futile. Thus it would not have added. to the composure and presence of mind of the unhappy crews of the Northyleet or the Atlantic to find that their urgent danger signals, on among themselves, instead of going up and giving the alarm. Yet in one or two instances such was the case on Saturday night, though it is needless to mention the inventors. Among the improvements in ships' lights the best was certainly that of Captain Sir Francis Blackwood. Though ingenious it is, like most ingenious things, very simple. By the manipulation of the helm it shows clearly by the lights which way each vessel, when approaching another, means to etcer. But then what becomes of the old Board of Trade doggred instruction to seamen in a kind of nursery rhyme like those in the coast-guard barometers. " When you see the light is red,

Port your helm and go ahead. Too much cannot be done for the improve ment of ships' lights, especially in the matter of their brilliancy, but it must never be forgotten that there is no amount of automatic incennity which will ever make up for the won of intelligent supervision. A ship's lights are always subsidiary to the look-out of the watch The Northfleet had her lights burning, but the Murillo had no look out, and so cut her down and drowned nearly all on board. Sir William Mitchell's night signals, by means of flushes of red, white, and green lights, were very good, but in our humble judgment they were quite eclipsed by the performances of Captain Colomb's distress flashing signal lantern. This is a plain spirit-of-wine lump fastened to a halfyard, with an india-rubber tube leading down to the deck. Along this tube powdered magnesium wire is blown into the flame, which at once flashes up with almost the intensity of the electric light, and the flashes can be made short or long at pleasure, and the length and number of the flashes indicate different words so that on Saturday night the judges, half a mile away, were spoken to with as much precision as if they had been on the platform of the island where these experiments were being tried. The shipwreck flare and life-saving apparatus at sea of Mr. N. J. Holmes were most excellent. It may have happened to some of our readers to see in a bitter stormy night when a vessel has struck the Goodwin Sands a "flare" thrown out to denote her need of assistance... "The "flare" generally consists of an old tar barrel or greass mow-loong to local trader. tub, and is more often than not put out before it has left the stranded ship a hundred yards. The "flare" of Mr. Holmes, however, consists mainly of a preparation of phosphate of calcium, we believe, and this ignites only when in contact with the water, and when once alight no amount of water will put it out. Anything more terribly brilliant than this "flare" as ebown on Saturday night could hardly be conceived, and as it was rowed along in a bout it lit up with a livid glare the white-looking faces of some 20,000 spectators who lined the banks. looking like the apoctres, who were said to line Lethe when Charon crossed with a torch in his boat and a new comer. But by far the most important use of this new invention was shown in its application to life buoys. Life bnoys were thrown adrift with this peculiar composition fuse attached to them, and the instant they touched the water they lit, and came drifting before the wind like a little burning Armada. The value of this invention cannot be over-estimated. When a sailor falls overboard in the dark, and in a rough sea, one might, as a rule, as well throw him a stone as a life- | with this Office. buoy. The bewildered half-stunned seaman cannot find it, and before the vessel is brought to he exhausts himself in his search, and sinks. From the instant these life-buoys of Mr. Holmes touch the water they continue burning brightly for more than balf an hour. Indeed, so great was their brightness on Saturday night that they had to be towed away to let the other light signals be seen with clearness. In the Royal navy there is a life-buoy with a portfire attached to it; but the portfire does not always light when the belt is let go, and when it does it is as often put out by the water as not. Those of Mr. Holmes are undoubtedly the best that have yet been made. For signals of orgent distress, such as that in which the unhappy souls on board the Northfleet and Atlantic were in, there is nothing shown at all comparable in efficiency to the signal of Mr. Pain. It is a very small and light mortar, such as even a cutter could carry. In this was placed a small "bomb-cartridge" united to a long friction fuse. Any one, in case of a want of lights, by putting it on the deck and rubbing it with his foot, can ignite the fuse. The explosion of the lower part of the marcon rocket instantly follows with a tremendous report, sending the maroon high into the air to a thousand feet or so, when it again explodes with detonation sufficient to attract the notice of any ships in sight, and in exploding scatters a cloud of crimson stars so bright and in such numbers that even in a fog they could be seen and never mistaken. This was, beyond all question, the best "urgent" danger signal shown on Saturday night. But yet, in spite of the excellence of this alarm, we cannot but ask ourselves what is the use of any method of danger signals unless the Board surers. of Trade make the system uniform, and make it compulsory. Again, another great thing which science has to discover is a good system of fog, signalling between great crowd ory "Oh !"

Among the quaint sayings of Sir John Bowring, is this concerning the marriage service:
"With this ring I thee wed," is sorcery; "with my body I thee worship," is idolatry; and "with my worldly goods I thee endow." is a lie. A VAST DOMAIN .- A friend and total abstainer, who has hitherto been a great admirer of Milton, feels his faith in that poet somewhat shaken on finding that he refers to the "Empire of Negus," without one single word of disapproval.-Punch.

A Sunday-school scholar, only six years old, was asked by his teacher, "Why they took Stephen outside the city to stone him to death ?" The little fellow was silent for a moment, as though absorbed with the problem, they could get a better crack at him."

ENGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION. Invites inspection of his large Collection of An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

MOR comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given, the accents being carefully marked on Agents. the best principle hitherto attained. The typo- Hongkong and China by Mesers. J. & R. Tengraphy displays the success of an attempt to nent, Glasgow, and Messrs. David Corsar & Sons make the Chinese and English type correspond Arbroath. in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast conomy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the following facts are submitted for consideration. Chalmers' Vocabularly contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medharst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the atudent of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various applications and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitherto pub-

GENERAL LEE AS A COMMANDER It is therefore asserted that Lee as a commander was faultless? Far from it. We say it with all humility, but without any, doubt, that from first to last he committed most grave errors-errors which only his other high qualities provented from being fatal to his reputation. Chief of these was his permitting the continuance of the laxity of discipline which throughout the war clogged the movements of the Confederates, and robbed their most brilliant victories of their The fatal habit of straggling from the ranks on the least protext; the hardly less fatal habit of allowing each man to load himself with any superfluous arms or clothes he chose to carry; the general want of subordination to trifling orders, which was the inheritance of their volunteer origin: these evils Lee found in full existence when he took command before Richmond, and he never strove to check them. Add to this, that though never careless of the good of his soldiers, he failed altogether to enforce on the Confederate Government the vital necessity of bringing the supply of their wants more directly under the control of those who emmanded them; so that at the last they were absolutely starving in Richmond, whilst the War Department there, uninspired by the proper energy for its task, had left large supplies scattered on the line of railroad Dunedin :leading to the Carolinas. When Dr. Arnold travelled on the Continent, nothing struck him more than the absence of gentlemen. "We see no gentlemen anywhere," he writes from Italy. From France he writes: "Again I have been struck with the total absence of all gentlemen, and of all persons of the education and feelings of gentlemen." Now, although Dr. Arnold spoke merely from the experience of a tourist. and was perhaps not quite competent to judge of Frenchmen and Italians otherwise than from external, still there was much truth in his observation. It was not quite absolutely true." I have known two or three Italian officers, and one Savoyard nobleman, and a Frenchman here and there; who were as perfect gentleman as any to be found in England, but they were isolated like poets, and were, in fact, poets in behaviour and self-discipline .- From "The Intellectual Life," by Philip Gilbert Hamerton.
